Fourth cruise ship departs Port Kembla

Following successful provisioning of food, goods and fuel, last night the fourth cruise ship, the Voyager of the Seas, departed Port Kembla. There are no more vessels currently booked to enter the port.

Provisioning was provided at the request of the NSW Government so that the cruise vessels can safely leave Australia. All activities were overseen by NSW Police and strict protocols and procedures were implemented to ensure the safety and wellbeing of all workers involved and the wider community.
